Prevention is Key!

While the loss of your property can certainly be irritating and cost you money, your sense of privacy and safety are weakened. Burglars not only rob you of your belongings, they also cause a wide variety of emotional and sometimes psychological troubles. There are three key issues to reduce the risk of becoming a victim. Here are some reminders to keep your property and your family safe:

Don't provide opportunity. Keep your doors and windows locked. Keep your storage units/garage doors closed and locked. Easy access makes you a suitable target.

Don't allow your home to appear unattended or vacant. Keep a light on, curtains drawn, occasional visitors, and have your mail held on vacations. Instead make it look as though someone is home, a guard dog, roaming neighborhood security, or an alarm system. Having your home 'guarded' deters criminal activity.

Don't display or show off your possessions. At dusk, or when your not home, be sure to close your curtains so as not to advertise your valuables or financial status to a potential burglary. Do not set boxes of recently purchases large-ticket items, out by the curb for trash pick-up. Keep your possessions concealed and out of sight. If they see something they want, the criminal becomes motivated.
